Pictorvision Moves to a Bigger Facility

Pictorvision, a leading producer of aerial camera systems will be moving to a larger location in Van Nuys, California on February 1, 2010.

Pictorvision has long been known in the film and video industry for its Wescam aerial camera stabilizers and now for its latest development, the Eclipse. This helicopter camera mount features the company's patented XR Motion Management™ technology, which provides the most advanced steering, stability and pointing capabilities available on the market.

According to Tom Hallman, President of Pictorvision, "The new 17,000 sq. ft facility, located next to Van Nuys airport, will be a great help to strategically position Pictorvision as the hub of aerial cinematography and intelligent imaging in the market."
